Reading and Use of English

PART 1

For questions 1-8, read the text below and decide which answer (A, B, C or D) best fits each gap. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Mark your answers on the separate answer sheet.

Example:

0 A fitness B condition C situation D circumstances

0	A	B	C	D
	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input checked="" type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>	<input type="checkbox"/>

Tip

- Read the title to get a general idea of what the text is going to be about.
- Read the text once to get the general idea.
- Read again. Pay close attention to the words before and after each gap.
- Look at the choices you have. Choose the best one.
- Read again to see whether it makes sense.

Give your health a Boost

Did you know that doing an aerobic workout for forty minutes a couple of times a week is enough to keep your brain in tip-top (0) ? Studies show aerobic exercise has the (1) to increase the size of the hippocampus – the part of the brain (2) for memory. Activities such as running, swimming and (3) walking may help prevent memory loss in old age.

Doctors say it's important that everyone does aerobic exercise as it aids weight loss and enhances mental well-being as well as reducing the (4)of heart disease. In children, it (5) healthy bone and muscle development.

The key to all aerobic exercise is increasing your heart rate. If you aren't (6) out in a sweat or your heart isn't pumping faster than it (7) does then you aren't working out aerobically. Thus, taking a short stroll or going window shopping don't (8) as aerobic workouts.

- | | | | |
|----------------|--------------|---------------|--------------|
| 1 A strength | B power | C force | D influence |
| 2 A remarkable | B eligible | C responsible | D dependable |
| 3 A brisk | B alert | C perky | D vivid |
| 4 A uptake | B span | C gamble | D risk |
| 5 A promotes | B succeeds | C manages | D raises |
| 6 A breaking | B starting | C coming | D passing |
| 7 A regularly | B repeatedly | C commonly | D normally |
| 8 A equal | B total | C count | D sum |

PART 2

For questions 9-16, read the text below and think of the word which best fits each gap. Use only one word in each gap. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Write your answers IN CAPITAL LETTERS on the separate answer sheet.

Example:

0	A
---	---	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--	--

Tip

- Read the text quickly once, without paying attention to the gaps.
- Read again carefully, trying to fill in each gap. The missing words can be: adverbs, auxiliary verbs, prepositions, pronouns, conjunctions, etc. If you can't find the answer for a gap, move on to the next one and return later.
- When you've finished, read the text again to see if your answers are grammatically correct and make sense in the sentence and the text.

The Southern Alps

The Southern Alps are (0) range of mountains that extend along the length (9) New Zealand's South Island. In 1643, the Dutch explorer Abel Tasman (the first European to reach New Zealand) described South Island (10) 'a land uplifted high'. The English explorer, James Cook, (11) gave the Southern Alps their name, said they were, 'impressively high'.

The Southern Alps have 18 ski areas, all within a (12) hours' drive of Christchurch. Seventeen peaks in the Southern Alps exceed 3,000 metres in height. The tallest, Mount Cook, stands at 3,754 metres. (13) addition to being a popular tourist destination, Mount Cook is also a favourite challenge (14) mountain climbers.

The Southern Alps are rich in flora – approximately 25% of New Zealand's native plant species (15) be found there. Wildlife includes the native rock wren, and the kea – a large parrot (16) was once hunted as a pest.

PART 3

For questions 17-24, read the text below. Use the word given in capitals at the end of some of the lines to form a word that fits in the gap in the same line. There is an example at the beginning (0).

Write your answers IN CAPITAL LETTERS on the separate answer sheet.

Example: 0 I N E X P E N S I V E

Tip

- Read through the title and the whole text to understand what it is about.
- Decide what part of speech you need in each gap. Remember, you may have to use the word in the plural form or the negative form. Think of possible prefixes and suffixes.
- Read the text again to see whether it makes sense.

E-BOOKS

Electronic books, or e-books, provide a new, and (0) way to read. E-books can be purchased on the Internet from hundreds of (17) or retail e-bookstores. In either case, pay with your credit or debit card, then download it (18) onto your computer, wait for it to arrive as an e-mail (19), or upload from a disk or CD. E-publishers and many of their authors have web pages with (20) information, plot summaries, reviews and pictures. They usually provide some chapters to read for free so you can try-before-you-buy.

If you love paper books to (21) and just can't imagine reading any other way, don't panic. So far, e-books are simply an alternative to (22) ones. They haven't replaced them, yet. However, you don't have to be much of a prophet to note that since distributing books (23) is easier, faster, cheaper and offers greater variety, we should soon see a lot more of them. Keep in mind, you take the same chances buying an electronic book as a paper one. Maybe you won't like it after all. But the majority of electronic publishers screen their books carefully, insist on (24) editing and publish only the best.

PART 4

For questions 25-30, complete the second sentence so that it has a similar meaning to the first sentence, using the word given. Do not change the word given. You must use between two and five words, including the word given. Here is an example (0).

Example:

- 0 Tim missed his dental appointment because the bus was late.
ABLE
 As the bus was late, Tim his dental appointment.

Tip Read the whole sentence, then look at the key word. Think of the structure tested (e.g. passive, reported speech, etc). Use the given word to complete the second sentence. Use between two and five words in each gap.

- Example: 0 WASN'T ABLE TO KEEP

Write only the missing words IN CAPITAL LETTERS on the separate answer sheet.

- 25 My mum insisted on my helping her with the housework at the weekend.
MADE
 My mum with the housework at the weekend.
- 26 The last time Maria went abroad was two years ago.
BEEN
 Maria two years.
- 27 It's a pity Jane can't be here for the party tonight.
WISH
 I to tonight's party.
- 28 "I'm sorry I ruined your plans, Kathy," James said.
APOLOGISED
 James her plans.
- 29 Photographing the exhibits is not allowed.
SUPPOSED
 You the exhibits.
- 30 It didn't matter to anyone what Steve said.
DIFFERENCE
 It to anyone what Steve said.

PART 5

You are going to read an extract from a novel. For questions 31-36, choose the answer (A, B, C or D) which you think fits best according to the text.

"Oh, Margaret," cried her aunt next morning, "a most unfortunate thing has happened."

The most unfortunate thing was not very serious. One of the flats in the block opposite had been rented by the wealthy Wilcox family. That Margaret's aunt, Mrs Munt, should be the first to discover the 'misfortune' was not surprising. The flats interested her greatly and she watched their every change most carefully. She claimed, of course, to hate them – they made the neighbourhood look too modern; they blocked out the sun; they attracted the wrong type of person. But in truth, Mrs Munt found her visits to her nieces twice as interesting since Wickham Flats had been built. Indeed, so fascinated with these flats was she, that after just two days with her nieces she knew more about them than almost anyone else in the neighbourhood.

Margaret listened to her aunt politely. However, she could not agree with her that the Wilcoxes arrival would throw a cloud over her sister Helen's life.

"Helen won't be affected," Margaret explained. "She has plenty of other things to think about. Besides, she got off to a bad start with the Wilcoxes and she'll want nothing to do with them, just like us."

"For a clever girl, how strangely you talk!" exclaimed Mrs Munt. "Helen will have to have something to do with them once they're living opposite. She may meet that Paul Wilcox in the street. She will have to greet him."

"Of course she will have to greet him. What I mean is, her interest in him has gone. She told me the other day she is no longer attracted to him, so what else matters? I think that disastrous episode last month killed off any last emotion in Helen. So greeting the Wilcoxes, even attending a dinner-party – she can do all those things, but the other thing, the one important thing – never again. Don't you see?"

Mrs Munt did not see. Indeed, she thought that Margaret was making a most questionable statement. How could any emotion, any interest that was once so strong, ever really die off completely?

"What's more," continued Margaret, "I am pleased to tell you that the Wilcoxes are bored with us. I didn't tell you at the time – as it might have made you angry – but I wrote a letter to Mrs Wilcox, apologising for the trouble that Helen had given them and she never replied."

"How very rude!"

"Perhaps. But maybe it was sensible?"

"No, Margaret, most rude!"

"In either case, I think we can consider it reassuring."

Mrs Munt sighed. She was returning home the following morning – just when it was clear her nieces needed her most. Other regrets filled her head. How magnificently she would have ignored Charles Wilcox had she met him face to face! She had already seen him, giving an order to a porter, but unfortunately his back had been turned towards her. Thus, although she had still made a point of giving him the cold shoulder, line 59 it could not – by any stretch of the imagination – be considered a successful snub at all.

"But you will be careful, won't you?" Mrs Munt pleaded.

"Oh, certainly. Very careful," replied Margaret.

"And Helen must be careful, too."

"Careful about what?" cried Helen, at that moment entering the room.

"Nothing," said Margaret, awkwardly.

"Careful about what, Aunt Juley?" demanded Helen.

"Well, a certain family, whom we know by name but do not mention, have taken the flat opposite from the Mathesons," replied Mrs Munt.

Helen began some laughing reply, but then stopped, and made them both very uncomfortable by blushing. Surprised, Mrs Munt exclaimed, "Why, Helen, you don't mind them moving in, do you?" Her question only made Helen's blush deepen to a brighter red.

"Of course I don't mind," said Helen a little crossly.

"It's just that you and Margaret are both so ridiculously serious about it, when there's nothing to be serious about at all."

31 According to the writer, Mrs Munt was upset because

- A she knew too much about her neighbours.
- B the block of flats prevented sunlight reaching her house.
- C a serious problem had occurred in her family.
- D a particular family were moving into the area.

32 How does Margaret think Helen will be affected by the Wilcoxes?

- A She will think of nothing else.
- B She will try to mend their relationship.
- C She will avoid them at all costs.
- D She will have no special feelings.

33 Mrs Munt felt that Helen

- A would be unable to overcome all her feelings for Paul.
- B had never actually had any real feelings for Paul.
- C would be happy to greet Paul if she saw him.
- D had finally become bored with Paul.

34 Margaret believed that the Wilcox family were

- A angry at Helen and her family.
- B no longer interested in her family.
- C reassured by Margaret's letter.
- D wrong to be so rude to her family.

35 The writer uses the phrase 'giving him the cold shoulder' (line 59) to mean that Mrs Munt

- A spoke to Charles Wilcox in an unfriendly way.
- B had deliberately ignored Charles Wilcox.
- C felt uncomfortable in Charles Wilcox's presence.
- D turned her back on Charles Wilcox when she saw him.

36 Why did Margaret and Mrs Munt feel uncomfortable with Helen?

- A Because Helen showed her embarrassment very clearly.
- B Because they were afraid Helen had overheard their conversation.
- C Because Helen was very serious about the Wilcox family's arrival.
- D Because Helen was demanding to know what they had said.

- Read the text quickly to get a general idea of what it is about.
- Look at the first part of the question, and underline the key words. Don't read the options A-D yet. Find the part of the text the question refers to.
- Go through the choices and underline the key words.
- Choose the answer that fits best. Keep in mind that the information may be rephrased.
- Even if you think you know the correct answer, always check that the others are not appropriate.
- Check your answer against the text a second time.

PART 6

You are going to read a magazine article about photographing wildlife. Six sentences have been removed from the article. Choose from the sentences A-G the one which fits each gap (37-42). There is one extra sentence which you do not need to use.

Wildlife Photography: Pointers for Beginners

There is probably no more challenging subject for photographers than wildlife. Animals are usually unpredictable and can sometimes be dangerous. However, the challenge of wildlife photography is precisely what makes it so rewarding. The best wildlife images create a powerful emotional connection between the viewer and the animal. But success requires planning, timing, and technique. Here are a few tips for getting started.

To produce winning wildlife photographs you need to know your subject inside-out. 37 It may not be obvious, but unless you understand the animal's behaviour and lifestyle, you really don't have a hope of getting the perfect shot.

When photographing most creatures, it is generally better to shoot at the eye level of the subject. 38 But wildlife portraits gain life by making a connection between the viewer and the animal, and, as with humans, the window to that connection is the eye. Also, always ensure the eyes are in focus. If the eyes aren't sharp in the primary subject of your photograph, most times, the photograph just won't work.

It is a good idea when starting out to practise taking wildlife images at places where animals are used to seeing humans.

39 This way, you can experiment with lighting and composition without wasting time seeking out a subject.

Bright sunlight can be a problem when shooting wildlife. In the middle part of the day, the sun can create heavy shadows which rob an image of the essential colour and detail that gives the subject its character. Worst of all, sunlight can create shadows on the face of the animal subject. As stated above, the critical part of any good wildlife photo is the eyes.

40 Beginners should start out by photographing wildlife in the morning and evening light.

Have patience and persevere. Accept that not all expeditions will result in good photographs. 41 To increase your chances of a great shot, when your subject does come into sight, keep shooting and do not stop. Continuous shooting means you will burn through a lot of memory cards. But it's the only way to increase the odds of getting an effective image.

Finally, bear in mind that although photography is not a hobby that's kind on the wallet, the expense involved does tend to be justified in the long term. This is not to say you have to splash out thousands of pounds on sophisticated equipment and accessories. 42 This is especially true if your intention is to take photos beyond the quality of a memorable holiday snap.

- A In fact, many may be fruitless.
- B If they are lost in darkness, the personal connection with the subject is lost.
- C It does mean, however, that it's wise to overlook budget choices.
- D When the animal acts suddenly or unexpectedly, you capture it.
- E So, read widely about the animal and spend hours in the field, watching and learning.
- F Many photographers make the mistake of standing above the animal (especially if it's small) and pointing the lens down.
- G Zoos and camping grounds are two such suitable locations.

Tip

- Read through the text and think of what kind of information is missing.
- Read the list of missing sentences.
- Fit the sentences into the gaps.
- Remember to look for clues such as reference words (he, it, that, this, etc).
- Check your answers and read the text through to see if it makes sense. Remember that there is one sentence you do not need to use.

PART 7

You are going to read four book reviews for guidebooks. For questions 43-52, choose from the reviews (A-D). The reviews may be chosen more than once.

Tip Read the questions and underline the key words. Read the texts and find which part each question refers to. The information might be paraphrased.

WHICH REVIEW:

- implies the author went for quantity of information over quality of information? 43
- says the guidebook is great for people who don't want the typical tourist experience? 44
- states the writer is well-acquainted with the country they write about? 45
- says the book has received recognition for its quality? 46
- suggests the author has no first-hand experience of the country? 47
- says the author has devoted the correct amount of space to visuals? 48
- says the book contains information about the country's not-so-famous attractions? 49
- implies that the author worked too fast? 50
- says the guidebook is not suitable for typical travellers? 51
- says the book is suited to people who are not experienced travellers? 52

A Guide to Guidebooks

- A Nathan Jamieson has written arguably the best guidebook to Turkey to come out in over a decade. He takes the first-time traveller to Turkey by the hand, providing an informative run-down of the country's major attractions. All the basics are covered, from transport and accommodation, to food and local customs. Jamieson also goes out of his way to describe Turkey's lesser-known sights. This guidebook is therefore a must-have for those who wish to get off the beaten track and discover the 'real' Turkey. Jamieson is clearly passionate about Turkey and its people, and he is to be commended for writing a guidebook that does not waste its time with trivial information, but deals mainly with the practicalities.
- B Ian Davies has done his best to pack as many of the numerous Greek islands as possible into this 500-page guidebook but after reading it, one is left wondering if it isn't a bit of a rush job. Historical points are often either overlooked or inaccurate. Descriptions frequently lack clarity. Maps showing places of interest are included in a back section, but unfortunately little reference is made to them. Clichés and stereotypes appear throughout the book, making one wonder if the author actually visited the places himself, or merely read about them. Nevertheless, this guidebook does provide a wealth of information on budget accommodation, as well as cheap places to grab a bite to eat.
- C At last, a guidebook to Egypt that truly stands out from its competition. Author James Emery has managed to strike just the right balance between glossy illustrations, fascinating historical information, and must-know travel and cultural information. Everything any tourist needs to know about Egypt is contained within this wonderful guidebook. What's more, this guide will appeal to both budget and luxury travellers alike, as Emery is a gifted writer, with a talent for picking out Egypt's most interesting travel experiences. The exhaustive information and clever design of this book explains why it has won two book awards. It may be a bit on the pricey side, but the wealth of information within it more than justifies the price tag.
- D In this guide to Lebanon, Thomas Leeway writes with a passion and understanding about a country he obviously knows well and loves. The introduction contains an excellent overview of Lebanon's troubled history and current political status. There are concise descriptions of all Lebanon's major sights, and practical travel information most travellers will find useful. There is, however, a definite struggle between styles. On the one hand, Leeway takes a light-hearted approach to the best Lebanon has to offer. On the other hand, he presents a heavy-handed and serious analysis of the country and its people. Thus, this guidebook is a good choice for anyone with a real interest in Lebanon, but hardly meant for the average tourist.

Writing

PART 1

You must answer this question. Write your answer in 140-190 words in an appropriate style on the separate answer sheet.

- 1 In your English class you have been talking about job prospects. Now your English teacher has asked you to write an essay for homework.

Write your essay using all the notes and giving reasons for your point of view.

Some people prefer to get a job immediately after finishing school.
Is that a good or a bad thing?

Notes

Write about:

- 1. experience
- 2. qualifications
- 3. (your own idea)

Read the rubric carefully, underlining the key words/phrases.

PART 2

Write an answer to one of the questions 2-4 in this part. Write your answer in 140-190 words in an appropriate style on the separate answer sheet. Put the question number in the box at the top of the answer sheet.

Tip Spend a short time reading each task carefully – ask yourself whether you know the appropriate vocabulary for each task before making your choice.

2 You have received this letter from your English-speaking friend, Max.

I'm doing research for a school project about young people and the environment. Can you help? Please tell me about the environmental problem which you are most worried about. Why is it such a problem? What should we do about it? Write back soon,
Max

Write your letter.

Speaking

Part One (Warm-up questions)

Suggested questions

In the future

- What do you want to do after finishing school?
- What type of career would you like?
- What do you hope to have achieved in 10 years?

Health

- What do you do to keep fit and healthy?
- How often do you exercise?
- Have you ever been to the gym? (Tell us about a time you did or whether you'd like to.)
- What types of food do you think are healthy?

Leisure

- What are your favourite leisure activities?
- How often do you go out with friends?
- What do you do at weekends?

Part Two (Picture description – sports & celebrations) [for Part Two pictures see p. S1]

A: Here are your photographs (Candidate A). They show people exercising and keeping fit in different ways. I'd like you to compare the photographs, and say what the benefits people get from these activities are. (Candidate B), which of these sports would you prefer to do?

B: Here are your photographs (Candidate B). They show people celebrating special occasions in different ways. I'd like you to compare the photographs, and say what people enjoy about these kinds of occasions. (Candidate A), which of these things would you prefer to do?

Part Three (Going on holiday)

Now, I'd like you to talk about something together for about two minutes. I'd like you to imagine that a holiday resort is going to offer two new activities for visitors. Here are some ideas for the activities, and a question for you to discuss. [for Part Three see p. S11 – What would people find enjoyable about these activities while on holiday?] First you have some time to look at the task.

- Now, talk to each other about what people would find enjoyable about these activities while on holiday.
- Now you have a minute to decide which two activities would be most enjoyable for visitors at the holiday resort.

Part Four (Discussing a topic)

Discuss the following:

- Which of these activities have you done on holiday?
- Some people like to go on holiday to relax, while others enjoy more of an adventure. Which do you prefer?
- What type of holiday do you like to go on? (Why?)
- Do you think that people get enough holiday time per year? Should there be more or less?
- While on holiday, is it also important to learn some things about the local culture? (Why?/Why not?)
- Many people say that frequent travel by aeroplane is bad for the environment. What do you think?
